Research areas

Wars Studies - Military/naval history- (post)imperial History - Extreme violence and crisis mortality (epidemics, wars, natural/environmental disasters) - History of medical science, of medicine and health in a French & global ([Post]imperial) perspective – Biosecurity - XIXth - XXIth centuries

My research activities revolve around Three complementary axes:

- War, naval, geopolitics and securities issues, with a focus on French & (post)imperial contexts
- Study of medical knowledge, practice and circulations as well as health security in French and (post)imperial context, biosecurity.
- A broader reflection based on epidemics and crisis mortality management, in particular in situations of armed conflicts and natural/environmental disasters.
